Achieving Results

Green Century is highlighting its award-winning Shareholder Advocacy program to deliver results that inspire your clients, help reduce material risks and protect the environment.

Our Distinct Approach

Green Century differentiates itself from other mutual funds by going far beyond proxy voting and sending letters to make an impact.

Our team of in-house shareholder advocates secure real-world results through direct negotiations, filing shareholder resolutions, and global collaborations. We work to deliver measurable outcomes.

Highlights:

Reducing Plastic Pollution: As a result of a Green Century negotiation, Disney agreed to disclose how much it plastic it is using in key business areas in 2025 and to set a plastic reduction goal in 2026. As one of the biggest and best-known companies in the world, this victory will have a significant – and highly visible – impact.

Mitigating Climate Change: Green Century withdrew a proposal at 3M, one of the largest conglomerates in the world, in exchange for the company showing how it will reduce its contribution to climate change with a detailed roadmap. Best known for products such as Post-it Notes and Scotch Tape, the company's commitment is an industry-first.

A sustainable investment strategy which incorporates environmental, social and governance criteria may result in lower or higher returns than an investment strategy that does not include such criteria.

Protecting Biodiversity: Kellanova*, formerly known as Kellogg, has become one of the first U.S. food companies to commit to conducting a comprehensive assessment of its impacts on nature, such as water and land used to grow food. The industry-leading move came in response to a shareholder resolution filed by Green Century.

Promoting Animal Welfare: Green Century filed a shareholder proposal asking Domino's* to phase out gestation crates or small cages in which they are unable to turn around, for pigs. In response, the company issued a commitment to maximize the time that pregnant sows spend outside of gestation crates.

Cutting Air Pollution: Lowe's*, the world's second-largest home improvement retailer, will share details on the planet-warming emissions from the products it sells in response to a shareholder proposal from Green Century. This kind of disclosure is a key first step in cutting pollution from items such as lawncare equipment which are often among the biggest polluters for retailers.

Preserving Forests: Biodiversity hotspots like the Amazon and Cerrado, home to animals from jaguars to giant otters, are the last places we should be clearing forests for food. After negotiations with Green Century, Bunge*, a leading global agribusiness, agreed to more fully protect these special places.
